

The Chronicle History

Enter Pistoll.

Flewellen. Tis no matter for his swelling, and his turkicockes.

God plesse you Ancient Pistoll, you scall,
Beggerly, lowfy knaue, God plesse you.

Pist. Ha, art thou Bedlem?

Dost thou churft base Troyan,
To haue me folde vp Parcas fatall web?
Hence, I am qualmish at the smell of Leeke.

Flew. Ancient Pistoll.

I would desire you because it doth not agree
With your stomackes, and your appetites,
And your digestions, to eate this Leeke.

Pist. Not for Cadwallader and all his Goats.

Flew. There is one Goate for you, ancient Pistol.

He strikes him.

Pist. Base Troyan, thou shalt dye.]

Flewellen. I, I know I shall dye:

But in the meane time, I would desire you
To liue and eate this Leeke.

Cower. Enough Captaine,

You haue astonisht him, it is enough.

Flewel. Astonisht him,

By Iesu, Ile beate his head foure dayes
And foure nights too, but Ile make him
Eate some part of my Leeke.

Pist. Well must I bite?

Flew. I out of question, or doubt, or ambiguities,
You must bite.

He makes Ancient Pistoll bite of the Leeke.

Pistol. Good, good.

Flewel.

of Henry the

Flewellen. I Leekes are good, a
Looke you now, there is a filling
To heale your bloody coxcombe.

Pist. Me a shilling.

Flew. If you will not take it,
I haue another Leeke for you.

Pist. I take thy shilling in earne.

Flew. If I owe you any thing,

I will pay you in Cudgelles:

You shall be a Wood-monger,

And buy Cudgels. And so God b

Ancient Pistoll, God plesse you,

And heale your broken pate.

Ancient Pistoll, if you see Leekes

Mocke at them, that is all: God b

Pist. All hell shall stirre for this.

Doth Fortune play the huswife wit

Is honour cudgeld from my warlik

Well France farewell, newes haue

That Doll is sicke. One malady off

The warres affoordeth nought, hor

Baud will I turne, and vse the sligh

To England will I steale,

And there Ile steale:

And patches will I ger vnto these

And sweare I gat them in the Gallie

Enter at one doore, the King of

Lords

And at the other doore, the King

Katherine, the Duke of

and others.

G